Section I:

Federal Aid Regulations require the family to take primary responsibility for meeting the educational costs of students. Eligibility is based on the criteria from "The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA)". It is determined by using both the student's and parent(s)'s financial information. Federal aid is based on a formula created by the U.S. Department of Education to determine a student's "Expected Family Contribution (EFC)". The FAFSA uses prior-prior year income information to determine the student's EFC and eligibility for Federal Aid not limited to (Pell, SEOG, and FWS).

However, after filing the FAFSA some families realize that their EFC may not adequately reflect the family's current financial situation due to special/unusual circumstances. The federal government allows the school to review these unique circumstances to determine if the situation warrants special consideration. Please note that a request for consideration of a special/unusual circumstance does not guarantee approval. In addition, even if approved, a recalculation of the FAFSA does not always result in increased eligibility for the student.

Some "special/unusual circumstances" which may qualify as considerations for a recalculation of the EFC...

- Loss of job, reduction in income, or job change (with lower pay)
- Death of a parent or spouse
- Divorce or separation
- Dependent student marries after the FAFSA was filed
- Dependent student becomes active duty military after the FAFSA was filed
- Taxed disability that is not required on the FAFSA
- Taxed funds that are not part of the usual income (one-time income, inheritance, etc.)

Please note that a request for consideration of a special/unusual circumstances require supporting documents. Failure to submit supporting documentation will result in a denied petition.
